WITNESSES:

7,500 SQUARE MILES ARE NOW SUBMERGED BY FLOOD WATER

AREA AS LARGE AS RHODE IS-LAND, CONNECTICUT AND DELAWARE COMBINED.

New Orleans La May 16 --With approximately 7500 square miles of Louisiana land inundated by the Mississippi river flood waters and more than 100 000 people driven from their homes in the parishes west of the river from the Arkansas line almost to the gulf the most serious calamity of the present disastrous flood--Hymells--promises to add another thousand square miles or more to the overwhelmed territory makes hundreds thousands of people and add millions of dollars to the property damage done

The property damage alone wrought by the floods in this state is enormous. It will amount into the millions--no one has even attempted to approximate it, for the whole has been too busy with work of rescuing people and live stock in the flooded territory and in caring for the thousands of homeless and destitute people. The loss of live stock has been exceedingly heavy--although more than 25 per cent have been swept by the floods, the list of known human victims is less than 40 The territory now under water in Louisiana comprises parts of 24 parishes with an area of five times as large as the state of Rhode Island. Almost four times as large as Delaware, as large almost as Rhode Island, Connecticut and Delaware combined and almost the size of the state of Massachusetts. Within another ten days five other parishes will feel the effect of the terrible waters from the Mississippi broken in levees which hourly are opening upon them which no land can sustain.

As yet, however, as in this territory where the waters are today scouring over but recent fertile fields and scores of prosperous villages and towns Louisiana has more than four times that which our which food waters cannot reach. Against the 7000 square miles now inundated there are now more than 40000 square miles of the state dry.

President Taft in a word told himself as he has been when he called the Colonel a humbugger.

The merchants of this town are in the pay of the money. It brings to Dothan and more in 1913 than in any other year.

J. H. Smith of Georgia who came into town by pulling little Joe over the other Smith is considered a live person over there. He has been spoken of for governor and now it is said that he is going to enter the race for congress and wants to be a senator.

What's New?

A man in a way a good many things and a very right straight out with it. One reading the following would naturally rather that editor had had just turned 47.

It is not much trouble to settle down when you are 47 years old.

That man hasn't paid a poll tax in fifteen years.

Geo. Ade, the Indiana writer is being talked of as a probable candidate for governor of that state. He has been putting over Fables in slang for some time, and has rolled up a bunch of money and now is to buck politics as a means of spending it. He had better go along making that farm he has writing plays, and funny pieces for the papers, making friends all the time. When he got mixed up in politics they will begin to stir up things on him and prove them too.

Tom Groucher.

The groucher has thrived but little in Dothan. The man who has something had in every movement gets poor consolation here.

The groucher or knacker who goes from one crowd to another seeking adverse criticism of a proposition gets poor in entertainment in Dothan.

Dothan has the spirit of optimism well developed. One may start out to develop a movement and find that nearly every body else follows it and rather than be alone he will join the crowd.

It is this spirit that has built Dothan and developed Houston County.

The drunk man who heard the first half hour strike clock was puzzled when it struck half past twelve. Then one and one third strikes, one every time. The clock maker thought to over come this, by making the half hour strike hit a bell of a different tone but that gave no relief. It strikes half past and you know that but you have to get up and turn on the light to see what it is half past. We suggest that they make it so that it would strike two for two o'clock and when it reaches half past let it strike two on the other bell and then hit the half past. If it doesn't help the fellow or who is listening, for the clock he'll just have to get up and see for himself.

A Union Depot

At different times along the question of a union depot for Dothan has been mentioned but no steps have been taken looking toward bringing such a thing.

Do you think of the size town that has to have every day a twenty four it looks like a depot would be one of the very important things for this town. Aside from the many conveniences it would be of great benefit to the traveling public.

It is possible that within another year or so Dothan will have another depot and that will make four passenger depots for Dothan to make more confusion. We believe the roads would expect to run their trains under one station and if the railroad commission of Alabama were to take up the matter Dothan would get a union passenger station.

A Victim in a Camp

A cable from London tells us that a mill try plot has occurred at Longmoor Camp. At Longmoor there is a mounted infantry regiment connected with the 11th and 12th Divisions. It seems that some Scotch men among the troops were out on Saint Patrick's Day. When a lot of them got out on an Irish holiday to have a good time, we know that they will fetch up in the next morning they were duly reprimanded and some of them were put in irons. Others were made to carry rules and shoulder brooms.

The Scotchmen rebelled claiming their right to do as they pleased on this day in the year. The officers refused to accept the round robin and ordered the men punished.

Then it was that the whole division bombarded the officers' quarters with bricks smashed every window broke in the roof and declared that if any one of them was to be punished all must be punished.

The assault was successful and all the officers turned out to quell the disturbance. The mathematics found to fall in line. Instead they formed a hollow square around a pile of bricks and requested the officers to come on. The officers in their revolvers but of course dared not shoot.

Then it was that a happy thought came to one of the officers. A captain—who he is not a boxer—got the men quiet enough to challenge them to pick out any one man to fight him and they would settle the matter in single combat.

That pleased the Scotchmen very much and they picked out their leader formed a line and agreed to let the two fight it out. London rules to govern.

The men stripped and went into the ring. The officer was a little man and the man they put up against him was a big one. But the little man had science on his side. He thrice armed in he who knows his cause is just.

He put it all over the big, Sandy McGee and in three minutes the seconds had cried that their big man had had enough and the soldiers stood ready to fall in line and obey orders.

A suggestion comes to us right here. Why wouldn't it be a good scheme for nations to settle their differences in this way?

Of course fighting never settles which side is right it merely settles which side is the stronger.

And all of the people in a nation never fight anyone. We only pick a few—and the fewer the better. This is an old time method going back to the days when David a youth called on Goliath and did him up with three small pebbles from the brook.

There is no copyright in the idea and I put it forth in the hope that it will attract attention of Andrew Carnegie and others who are working for peace.

—The Era

ROOM ON THE FARM

We have thought for some time that the people who come to this country from foreign countries, make mistakes by hanging around the towns and the cities trying to make a living. There are many of us who feel that those people hunt for a way to make a living in the city, because they are unqualified by training for a job on the farm. But that is not the case. The great majority of the immigrants to this country, come from the rural districts. They know what it is to till the soil and while they may know little about raising cotton and sugar cane still their knowledge of farm is worth much to them, and if they would come to the farming sections of the United States they would be better off and those sections would be better prepared to meet the labor question.

Year by year the negro grows more discontented with farm work and drifts to the towns. That in had for the negro labor is needed on the farm worse than it is needed in the towns and cities. However, if we could attract more farmers on the farms of the south it would mean much more to them and much to the south where the question of labor gets bigger all the time.

Here is something from the advertiser under the heading Put Them on the Farms that strikes it exactly.

The recent census figures dealing with the foreign born population of New York City furnished additional reason as to why should some simple and workable plan of distributing the immigrants to the agricultural lands of the country should be devised. The concentration of foreign immigrants in New York is largely causing no little concern in that city.

The foreign born population of New York City grew from 1,260,913 in 1900 to 1,927,712 in 1910. The population of the city as a whole increased 39 per cent in that decade. But the foreign born population of that city increased 73 per cent. Forty out of every hundred persons in New York City are of foreign birth.

At this rate in a few years there will be more foreign born persons in New York City than there will be native born inhabitants. The immigrant who stops in New York City becomes immediately a consumer. To the limit of his ability he lives on the problem of the increasing cost of living. The more consumers and the fewer producers the more the cost of living, in general.

The government together with philanthropic citizens must grapple fairly with the problem of moving the immigrants to the farms where their labor will furnish compensation for their upkeep. This is a vital problem and it should be met.

Education of Films

When Edison is going to revolutionize the film systems of the United States he has declared his specific intention to spend some $3,000,000 much of his valuable time and all the tact and talent he possesses to accomplish this end.

It is hardly likely that any man however great can accomplish this in a given length of time. He can however do much to inspire others to make certain changes in the present methods. One point made by Edison is a valuable one and will no doubt be received with favor in the educators of the country. The educational value of moving pictures can not be overestimated. The camera has come to a state of perfection that makes it invaluable. It is used in medicine, in surgery, in astronomy, in the mechanical field, in industry in every sort of science.

Even in churches motion pictures are used to intensify the interest in sermons by bringing vividly before the eyes of the congregation biblical scenes of impressive beauty.

In most of the medical colleges of the country clinics are photographed and are reproduced from time to time in order that students may become more and more familiar with the details.

Mr. Edison proposed to adopt the moving picture process of educating children. He proposes to substitute the camera for the blue back spell book.

It is all right to familiarize the youthful mind with all the geographical knowledge by using the moving picture camera for the different scenes of the world the great capitals the races of men can be easily transcribed to the screen. It is entirely possible that the geographical lessons thus given will be far more effective than the routine lessons of geography and histories.

There are other studies that can be thus successfully administered by the camera. Hygiene and physiology can be made an interesting field for study so can history and astronomy. Such pictorial lessons will be unquestionably beneficial but when it comes to penmanship and spelling even the wizard will find his camera lacking.

Words which are themselves symbols make up our text books. They describe natural processes but they leave on the mind of the student only an indefinite and blurred picture. Substitute for the text books the actual processes of which a description alone is given and the picture becomes clear, distinct and convincing.

It is the old theory of seeing and believing and in this Mr. Edison is right but there will be limits which must be recognized in the long, run—Commercial Appeal.

The Method of Preparation is Recommended in Better Than Ordinary.

and, always appetizing it is particularly so made by removing all skin, bones and edible parts from a pound of cold cooked salmon, and a silver fork (a small one) is used to roll the salad into a ball. A table spoon of chopped olives, pickles and capers, and a little of the dressing top with a mound of lettuce.

A portion of the family potato, too, will be found specially adapted without any sacrifice of substantiality. Prepare the potatoes as usual, and, boiling them fresh, a bowl with a slice of onion and a little salt in this bowl with tender mustard seeds, a little of the dressing and some finely cut, sweet green pepper. Dress the sauce made of rich whipping cream, combined carefully with the salt and white pepper until the potatoes are done. Mix with the potatoes and serve on lettuce.

FOR SAVORY HERBS

Now Small the Garden, Cooked Requisite Must Have a Place.

any garden, however small, should be a source for the savory herbs. There are so many more savory herbs fresh for immediate use, or for use in the kitchen, than there are in the garden. A mixture of foreign herbs, summer and winter savory, and are unequalled for cooking pork and lamb, or as stuffing for fowls. "It used to be considered the only possible seasoning for lamb, and it is still so. Lamb, suggests mint, should surely have a place in the sweet herbs. Sage and rosemary are well known favorites. Parsley is very popular, as it can be used as dried, and for garnishing, as well as, seasonings. Tarragon is a pleasant relish to vinegar for cold meats and fish sauces. These herbs need little more than to be dried in a paper bag, or in a pan of two plants of any variety of growing enough for the year."—Woman's Home Companion.

Make your stools like the one shown in the sketch and your stool troubles will forever disappear. It is a 34-inch machine bolt, 4 inches long, and has a square head. CLEANING THE MILK VESSELS practical Dairymen Always Rinse Utensils With Cold Water, Then Scald and Hang in Sun.

(By M. R. JONES)

There is one subject that I have never seen much written about, and one that I think is very important—the care of milk vessels. I have seen so many people empty a vessel and take it to the kettle and pour boiling water in it. I always rinse my vessels out with cold water, and then wash with good warm water with borax or soda in it; then scald them well and dry, and it is best to have a place where you can hang them in the sun.

DAIRY NOTES

How easy it is to forget to wash the calf pails.

You can save time by teaching your cows to go in their proper stalls.

Plan to raise your own protein feeds this year and cut out the high-priced milk stuffs.

Breeding for a special purpose tends to develop an animal that will be in harmony with her function.

The man who is producing milk for the city trade should have a clear mind, clean hands and a pure heart.

Few dairymen now make butter to sell. The price paid for butter fat by creameries takes all the cream from the farm.

With corn fodder, corn silage, and clover, alfalfa or cowpeas hay on hand,

THE DAIRYMAN MAY CONSIDER HIMSELF READY FOR BUSINESS

Undissolved salt in butter is the result of too little moisture in the butter, too coarse salt, or the butter being too firm when salted.

Don't overstock the pastures the coming season. Better pay a pretty good price to get the young stock pastured before doing that.

A drouthy summer, followed by a severe winter are the conditions that will boost the silo heat summer as it has never been boosted before.

The hired man who is attached to the farm by his own family, his home and regular work is seldom one who is discontented with his position.

The dairymen has no right to complain of the labor problem unless he is willing to give a good faithful man steady work all the year around.

It is easier to keep specks out of the butter than to get them out, handling milk water that goes into the churn, through a cheesecloth, helps.

The most common cause of trouble with a separator is the vibrating of the bowl, due to the machine not being level, or not securely fastened down.

COWS SHOULD CALVE IN FALL

Dairy Department of the University of Missouri Recommends This as the Best Practice.

A number of reasons are given for the practice of most dairymen of having cows calve in the fall instead of in the spring. The Dairy Department of the University of Missouri recommends this as the best practice in most cases, for some of the following reasons:

"Prices for milk and butter fat are highest in the winter, and it is desirable that the cow be fresh to give the maximum now. When she begins to decline in the spring, the fresh grass of pastures will stimulate her to hold up to good production.

"Calves in the first few months of their growth are fed mostly by hand. In winter there is more time to care for them properly. The grass of spring will come along just when they are getting started on a rapid growth.

"The dry period of the cow will come at the time of year when pastures are usually poor in Missouri, and when flies are bad. This will give relief to the cows when they need it and will be easier for the milking.

"In cases where a regular milk trade is to be supplied, it is necessary to have the cows calve at intervals so that there will be almost a uniform flow, but where the farmer is selling cream it seems best to have the calves come in the fall."

THE hospitality of the South is proverbial; a great factor in the success of Southern hospitality is Southern cooking, for good cooks make or mar the meal.

Cottolene is a Southern product, made from pure, refined cotton oil,
and Southerners know of its purity

Northerners.

It stands to reason that a cooking from hog fat and indigestion, will make purer, richer, more healthful food than the product of the pig.
